III. Reading Comprehension: @2%

A cancer-causing factor in our environment is the light of the sun. The ultraviolet radiation story began in Germany in 1894, when scientists expressed their belief that too much exposure to sunlight was related to skin cancer. In 1928, English scientists succeeded in producing skin cancer in experimental animals exposed to bright sunlight.

The cancer-producing effects of the ultraviolet rays of sunlight seem to be limited to the skin. It has been noticed that the incidence of skin cancer is the highest in the southern and western parts of the United States and lowest in the North. Furthermore, skin cancer occurs more often among people who work outdoors, such as sailors and farmers, than among people who can guard themselves against too much exposure to the sun.

The color of the skin is another factor. Cancer of the skin is most common among fair-skinned people. It is much less common among Black and others with dark skin.

Related to the cancer-causing effects of sunlight is the discovery of the dangers of ionizing radiation from radium and X-rays. This discovery was actually made on human beings. Early radiologists developed dryness, ulcers and eventually, cancer of their hands.

30. The cancer-producing effects of the ultraviolet rays of sunlight seem to be confined to _____.
(A) the hair (B) the face (C) the skin (D) the inner body
31. Besides too much exposure to the sun, what is another factor that determines cancer of the skin?
(A) The food we eat. (B) The place we live. (C) The climate. (D) The color of our skin.
32. Research on ultraviolet radiation began _____.
(A) less than twenty-five years ago. (B) about fifty years ago.
(C) nearly one hundred years ago. (D) several centuries ago.
33. According to the text, we can say the _____ are more likely to contract skin cancer.
(A) natives in Nigeria (B) Indians in Amazon
(C) Mongolians in Siberia (D) whites in Southern California

There are two ways in which one can possess a book. The first is the property right you establish by paying for it, just as you pay for clothes and furniture. But this act of purchase is only the prelude to possession. Full ownership comes only when you have made it a part of yourself, and the best way to make yourself a part of it is by writing in it. An illustration may make the point clear. You buy a beefsteak and transfer it from the butcher's icebox to your own. But you do not own the beefsteak in the most important sense until you consume it and get it into your bloodstream. I am arguing that books, too, must be absorbed in your bloodstream to do you any good.

34. We usually establish the property right of a thing by _____.
(A) making ourselves a part of it. (B) writing in it.
(C) purchasing it. (D) transferring it into our bloodstream.
35. The prelude to something means _____.
(A) the completion of something. (B) the introduction to something.
(C) the warning to something. (D) the careful attention to something.
36. The best way to make yourself a part of the book you have bought is to _____.
(A) read it thoroughly. (B) make a beautiful cover for it.
(C) read it thoroughly and write in it. (D) memorize as much as you can.
37. An illustration is _____.
(A) an illumination (B) a display (C) an example (D) a description
38. A butcher is one who _____.
(A) sells meat. (B) hunts for games.
(C) cooks food. (D) kicks the ball in the soccer game.

IV. Translation: Read and write down the meaning of the following paragraph in Chinese. 9%

"Children learn to do this by practicing a series of thinking skills from a program called ICPS—I Can Problem Solve. The goal of ICPS is to teach these problem-solving skills to children who are now poor problem solvers and to encourage the continued growth of these skills in children who show early signs of proficient problem-solving techniques. Even good problem solvers can become better and can turn their natural inclination into problem-solving habits that can prevent later interpersonal conflicts."

V. Writing: Please write at least 120 words to talk about your own ideas as the answer to the following question. 20%

"Do you agree that family is the most important social unit in modern society? "
