1. Assessment is perhaps one of the most misunderstood areas of language teaching and learning. Most students see assessments as a threat to their competence because they are afraid they won't perform well on them. Please state the reason why it is essential for an English teacher to fully understand the function of assessments. (25%)
2. "Developing good levels of literacy in the L1 and good oral skills in the L2 are the most important objectives in Children's English teaching." Do you agree with this statement? Please state your opinion. (25%)
3. What are the three main types of learning strategies? Which type is the most frequent used one in your English learning process? How do you apply these learning strategies to your current/future teaching? (25%)
4. Social-interactionists criticized Chomsky's preoccupation with the structures of language, feeling that other more personal and social aspects of language use were being neglected. How do children think and learn a language in terms of social interactionist views? (25%)
