Part IV. Reading Comprehension: (8%)

We can easily tell that someone is embarrassed based on the blushing color of their face or that someone feels sick by the green tint of their skin. A company named 2AI Labs has capitalized on the fact that our outer layers reveal so much about our inner well-being. Colorful changes in the skin occur during hemoglobin oxidation, when oxygen is released into the blood. 2AI Labs has created glasses that amplify the visual signs of this process, enabling wearers to determine what is happening inside the body. For example, concentrations of green and blue indicate that the blood has a low level of oxygen, signaling that the patient is weak. Because hemoglobin changes color in areas of trauma, the eyewear also makes it possible to detect dangerous internal injuries long before any external bruises appear. An added bonus is that the glasses make blood veins and arteries easy to find. Say good-bye to multiple needle sticks while having your blood drawn! These incredible spectacles can save money, time, and perhaps a few lives.

1. Which of the following statements is TRUE?
  - A. These glasses will eliminate the need for needles.
  - B. These glasses detect minute changes in skin tones.
  - C. Hemoglobin determines whether we are happy, sad, embarrassed, etc.
  - D. Excess hemoglobin shows up on the glasses as green or blue.
2. What does "capitalize on" mean in the context of the passage?
  - A. To donate money for new research or an experiment
  - B. To demonstrate one's advanced knowledge of the body
  - C. To provide medical technology to improve patient care
  - D. To take advantage of a situation for one's own benefit
3. Why would these glasses benefit lab technicians?
  - A. They could spot severe bruising more easily.
  - B. They could say good-bye to dangerous needle use.
  - C. They could quickly diagnose blood disorders.
  - D. They would be more efficient at taking blood samples.
4. What can you infer from the story?
  - A. It is extremely difficult to understand emotions and moods.
  - B. Medical technology is making it easier to detect trauma and illness.
  - C. Glasses are both stylish and useful in monitoring a patient's health.
  - D. New medical apparatuses are diminishing the need for doctors.

V. Reading Comprehension (20%): Choose the best answer based on the passage.
Questions 1-5 refer to the following letters.

Let's learn about modern-day farms from Paul Shapiro
By Jane Lee

In 21st-century, it is hard to believe that we still can see scenes from torture chambers. Chicken beaks, cow's and pig's tails chopped off by guillotines, pigs imprisoned in individual steel boxes where they cannot turn around or stretch their legs are just a few. Last week Animal in Our Live exclusively interviewed a famous animal activist, Paul Shapiro. More sad reality on many farms today is unveiled in the following interview.

First, we should learn about "factory farming" which is the modern practice of raising animals for food in extreme confinement, in order to maximize the profits of farmers. Abuses usually associated with factory farming that makes these animals spend their entire lives in pain and misery when they are slaughtered. About 15 years ago, a friend of mine showed me a video of horrific mistreatment that these animals endured. I could not believe what I saw so I formed an organization called COK, Compassion Over Killing, which intended to spotlight the very dark side of factory farming. Then, four years ago, I joined The Humane Society of the United States as the senior director of the factory farming campaign. The main goal is to tell the stories being hidden from the American public. We not only videotaped these animals' conditions, but we would also bring sick and injured animals to veterinarians. We want to speak out on their behalf and make a difference for those desperate animals. For me, animal advocacy is not just a career. It is my entire life.

Subject: Some further questions about COK and Paul Shapiro

Dear Alice,

This is Russell, a senior college student at MCU. After reading the interview of Paul Shapiro about animal activism, I found some more films showing certain kinds of cruelty of farm animals that horrified me. I really admire Mr. Shapiro's achievements and what he has done for the animals. I would like to know, as a student, how can I participate in animal activism. Are there any special requirements to be a part-time animal activist? I understand some activists would go into factory farms and slaughter plants with hidden equipment to videotape what was happening to these animals. Does COK provide training programs for someone like me who is enthusiastic to be an animal activist but lack of professional knowledge and skills?

Thank you for your time and assistance in advance. I am looking for your reply.

Best regards,

Russell Tyler
