1. In what ways have new media technologies – e.g., communication satellite, computer, and Internet -- changed the reporting and circulation of international news? What is your assessment of the quality and quantity of international news in the major dailies and television channels in Taiwan? (25%)
2. The 2008 Olympic Games will be held in Beijing this coming August. For quite a few years China has been devoting many resources to make good use of this occasion to present her best to the world. What are the major images does China want to project to the world with respect to hosting the 2008 Olympics? Is China achieving her objectives? If yes, why? If no, why not? Elaborate your response with both theoretical arguments and empirical evidence. (25%)
3. Pandemic diseases, such as Avian Flu (bird flu), are increasingly being understood as global communication issues by such international organizations as WHO and countries around the world. Why is this so? In your answer, please refer to your own country or the country/countries you are familiar with for illustration and apply, where appropriate, communication or media theories (sociological, economic, or political) to support your arguments. (25%)
4. During the past 30 or so years, many changes have been taking place in the development of press freedom in countries around the world. What are these changes, what factors account for these changes, and what are possible trends for the future? Elaborate your answer. (25%)
